Tutu was born in Klerksdorp, South Africa, in 1931. He grew up in a poor family, but he was able to attend school and university thanks to the support of his community. After graduating from university, Tutu became a teacher and then a priest. In 1976, he was appointed Bishop of Lesotho, and in 1986, he became Archbishop of Cape Town. Tutu's position as Archbishop gave him a platform to speak out against apartheid, and he quickly became one of the most prominent leaders of the anti-apartheid movement.

Tutu's work for peace and reconciliation in South Africa has been recognized around the world. He was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1984, and he has also received the Presidential Medal of Freedom from the United States and the Free Download of the British Empire from the United Kingdom. Tutu is also a founding member of The Elders, a group of international leaders who work to promote peace and human rights.

In The Voice of the Trumpet, Tutu reflects on his own life and work, and he shares his insights on the challenges and opportunities facing South Africa today. Tutu's book is a powerful and moving account of one man's journey, but it is also a story of hope and reconciliation for all South Africans.
